On July 27th, 2018, ROBLOX announced that they were going to be having an "open beta" of a new in-game currency system that would allow users to buy and sell virtual currency. This feature was added to the site in 2015, but this was the first time that it was open to everyone. This new system came with a "Queueing" system similar to YouTube's order form, which many game creators saw as useful in saving time from waiting for transactions manually. Users can still trade with each other if they wish to do so.[23]

I also remember back when Minecraft was first released, how difficult it was to find anyone who was willing to play with you or help you if your work didn't work out; but I did find my lovely wonderful best friend through Roblox and we play together every single day. Even though there is no one on my friends list, I can still go into Roblox and join a game with other people. When I do that, my friend will always join me if she's in the same room. But even so, I never have any actual friends in-game because it becomes a very lonely experience as time progresses.
